2019 PUBLIC SAFETY INITIATIVES

2014 - 2019

Mayor Fulop has made public safety a top investment priority, which is resulting in historically low levels of violent and nonviolent crime citywide. The police department is the largest and most diverse in Jersey City's history. With more than half of our police officers made up of minorities, we now have a much more diverse department to better reflect this city. Having hired over 600 police officers since 2014, the JCPD has been able to deploy officers more strategically, targeting high crime areas with increased foot patrols to deter crime and promote community engagement.

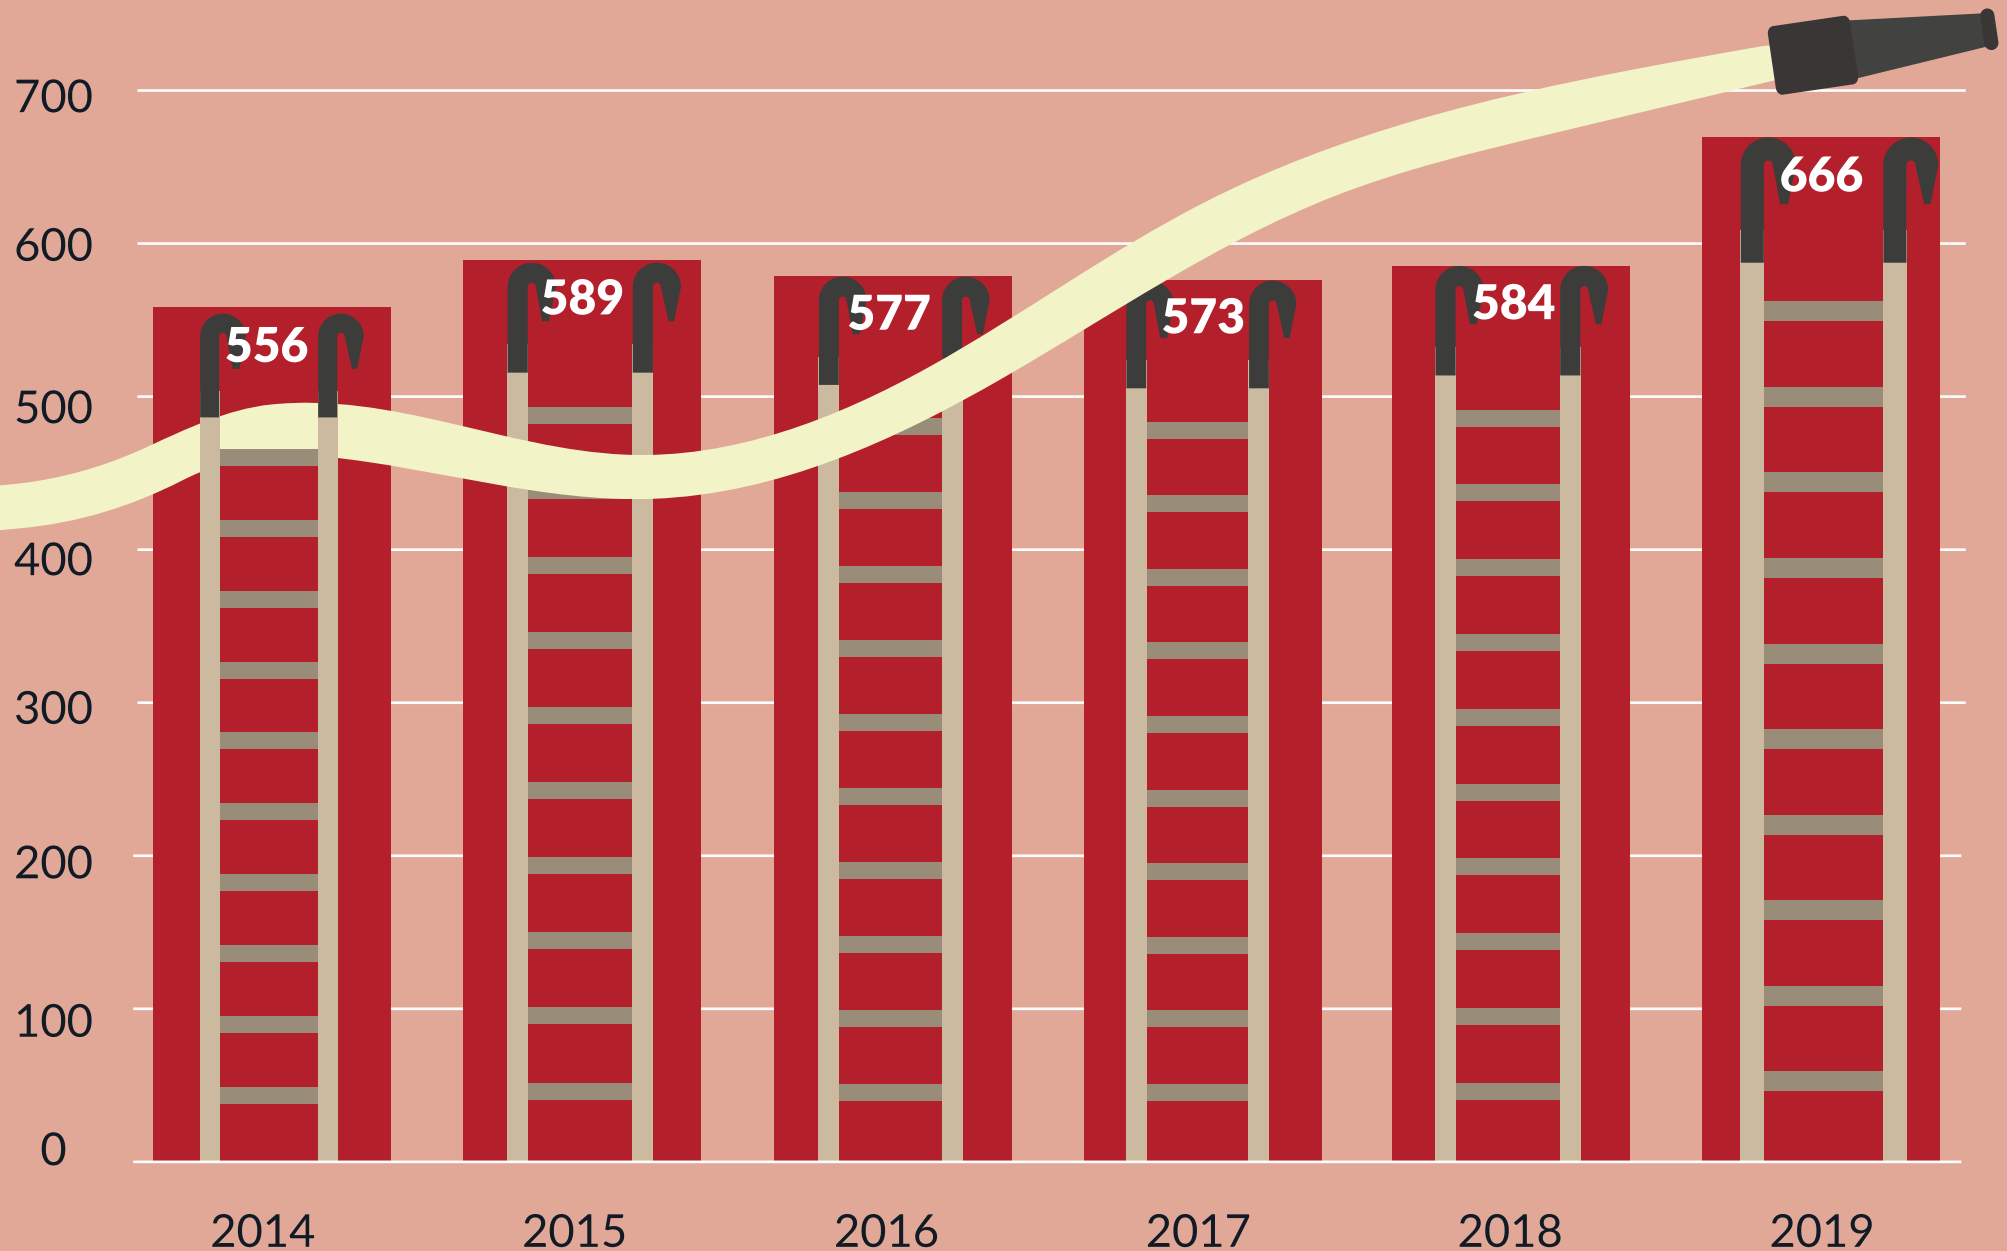

Strengthening the City's overall crime reduction efforts is the restoration of the antiquated closed circuit television (CCTV) system. Since 2014, more than 200 CCTV cameras have been strategically placed in high crime areas. This not only provides police with a helpful tool, but also serves as a deterrent to potential criminals. Phase 5 of our CCTV rehabilitation is currently underway, which includes the installation of 50 additional cameras by early 2020, for a total of over 200 CCTV cameras added citywide since 2014.

MAYOR'S QUALITY OF LIFE TASKFORCE

The Jersey City Mayor's Quality of Life Taskforce was formed in April 2019 to target the worst quality of life offenders using data collection and coordinated enforcement. To date, the Taskforce has successfully prosecuted absentee landlords, local polluters, negligent businesses, and other significant public nuisances.

The Fulop Administration sees strong quality of life enforcement as a key factor in keeping violent crime numbers at historic lows. Tackling abandoned buildings, vacant properties, and other quality of life nuisances means less places for serious crime to occur, while also fostering more engaged communities that are willing to work alongside code and law enforcement.

The number one goal of the Taskforce is to compel property owners and other public nuisances into compliance before inspectors, police, or assistant municipal prosecutors consider quality of life issues resolved.
